OVERVIEW

Dancing Cat Records' dual mission for the past 21 years has been to produce and promote the music of George Winston, as well as Hawaiian slack key guitar. The production wing of the company, Dancing Cat Productions, is the in-house management for George Winston and also assists in the marketing of slack key guitar recordings and concerts.

HISTORY

Pianist George Winston founded Dancing Cat Records in 1983. His goal was to record both the musicians who have influenced his music and musicians whose music he felt needed to be preserved for future generations.

In the mid 1980s, Dancing Cat released solo guitar recordings by Brazilian guitarist Bola Sete, classical guitarist Michael Lorimer, folk guitarist George Cromarty, the reissue of the classic ROCK 'N' ROLL GUMBO album by the late New Orleans rhythm and blues pianist Professor Longhair, an album by the New Orleans singer/songwriter Shad Weathersby, and an album by vocalist Sylvia Kohan. Dancing Cat also released the soundtrack to the children's story THE VELVETEEN RABBIT, with narration by Meryl Streep and solo piano accompaniment by George Winston.

After releasing these albums, George and Dancing Cat began concentrating on recording albums of the masters of the fingerstyle solo guitar tradition from the Hawaiian Islands known as ki ho'alu or slack key guitar, which George had been listening to and studying since 1974. These albums became Dancing Cat's HAWAIIAN SLACK KEY GUITAR MASTERS SERIES.
